

Thinking differently about ...

Making Innovation Sustainable: strategies for making your changes stick.

Rapid and relentless change has become the norm in education but making changes last long enough to make them effective is a challenge.

This training will

- Increase your understanding of the thinking needed to make effective, sustainable decisions
- Give you the practical tools and templates to apply these thinking processes
- Help you solve current problems
- Assist in generating fresh ideas
- Enable you to identify your decision-making strengths and what to develop
- Encourage you to work with others on their problems and yours
- Help you utilise established strategies alongside new approaches
- Give you the right questions to ask the right people
- Provide you with the opportunity to leave having created some new ideas solved a work problem
- Be the starting point for a learning community that is focussed on effective change and innovation.
